

U. S. NOT TO TAKE ACTION IN MEXICO

Coolidge Sees No Reason For Interference Yet

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Political and government questions have occupied President Coolidge but little since he came to the family home-land for a few days although both have been given his attention for brief intervals.

With Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican house floor leader, he discussed general matters before Mr. Tilson left for New York to open by Aug. 15 joint eastern headquarters for the republican senatorial and congressional committees. Mr. Tilson said reports reaching him of congressional campaign in the country were "comfortable." He will go to White Pine Camp in the Adirondacks later to discuss the political situation more in detail with Mr. Coolidge.

Attitude on Mexico.

It was made known that the President considered it the duty of the United States to act in situations such as that presented by the difficulty between the church and the state in Mexico only if and when some action has been taken against American citizens there or some treaty rights have been contravened.

Reports that Soviet Russia might send a commission to this country to find its debt to the United States, have not reached the President, but it was indicated that he feels it is not necessary for the Washington government to take any action. It Russia wants to pay he assumes it will first repeal its ordinance repudiating the debt.

A quiet week end was planned by the President who is to return to White Pine Camp in the Adirondacks Monday.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN DISPUTE OVER MEXICO CHURCHES

Business Men Are Gloomy Over Economic Boycott

Mexico City, Mexico, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The end of the first week in the break between the Roman Catholic Church authorities and the Mexican government over the government's recently imposed regulations governing the enactment of the religious clauses of the constitution found the opposing groups in unchanged positions.

There apparently are no prospects of a settlement of the controversy at an early date. The priests continue to absent themselves from the churches but the doors of many of the edifices are open for worshippers to enter and meditate and pray.

Business circles continue to take a gloomy view of the situation, fearful that the economic boycott instituted by the national league for defense of religious freedom, as a protest against the religious regulations may assume more serious proportions in the capital.

Little news regarding conditions in other parts of the republic is being made available in Mexico City, but apparently with the exception of occasional purely local disturbances, the situation growing out of the religious controversy seemingly is being calmly accepted by the mass of the people.

Troops on People

Reports from Zacatecas, state of Michoacan say that there have been serious disorders between the populace and police and soldiers growing out of the religious situation. The reports add that the troops are in control of the situation, but that there were several casualties during the combat. Neither the government nor the local newspapers have any authoritative details.

This Fellow Has Everything Wrong But He is Happy

Richmond, Va., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A Richmond man, who had known for some time that his heart was on the right side, learned that his liver and appendix was on the left, when he was brought to Grace Hospital today for an operation.

"He had acute appendicitis," said Dr. Bryan, who did not disclose the man's name. "I opened the right side. No appendix. So I opened the left side and found it. He is doing very well."

Dr. Bryan said the patient despite the misplaced organs, had enjoyed splendid health all his life.

SHOOTSELF WHEN HE IS INVOLVED IN MURDER OF WOMAN

Jacob Michaels Shoots Self In Sheriff's Presence

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Jacob Michaels, Champaign, shot himself last night just after a severe grilling by Sheriff W. J. Strode in connection with the death a week ago of Mrs. Anna Carmody, whose body was found several hours after her death from gun shot wounds near the Champaign County Club.

Michaels had just been taken from the court room where the coroner's jury was sitting, by Sheriff John Gray who proceeded to search him. While Michaels' hands were outstretched and Gray was running over his pockets, Michaels, with a revolver which he had concealed from the sheriff, shot himself in the head. Gray knocked down Michaels' arm, but too late to prevent a second shot taking effect. Michaels was taken to the hospital where little hope is held for his recovery.

Involved in Murder

A moment before Michaels was taken from the court room to allow Strode to charge the jury, he had involved himself in Mrs. Carmody's death by admitting he had been with her the morning and until 5:30 in the afternoon the day of her death. He also testified that he had instructed her in the use of the revolver with which she was found to have been killed.

He said that he had had business dealings with her in which he had lost $26,000. He said that she had told him that afternoon that she was going to kill herself.

The jury returned a verdict charging Michaels with murder and ordered him bound over to the grand jury without bond.

New York, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Ace Hudkins, of Kobuska, and Stanislaus Loayza of Chile are scheduled in their efforts to gain honors in the lightweight division. Their 12 round contest at the Coney Island Stadium here last night was declared a draw after a toe to toe combat that saw the Chilean lead through the first half of the contest only to have Hudkins finish furiously. Many of the experts conceded the westerner seven of the rounds.

SUCCESSFUL SUICIDE

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7.—(AP)—William C. McGrath, 64, who yesterday shot and wounded Fred Bach, 52, pool hall proprietor in an attempt to collect a $200 alleged debt, and then turned the revolver on himself, died in City Hospital today. Bach received flesh wounds and will recover.

BOYS ENTERTAINED MANY VISITORS AT SCOUT CAMP LATELY

Stunt Night Huge Success—Sunday Is Visitors' Day

They Boy Scout camp was visited by throngs Thursday afternoon and evening, the campers supplying a fine program of entertainment with each tent furnishing original stunts. Wednesday morning was a very busy time, for most of the camp slept out in the wide open spaces during the night, or rather tried to sleep. In the afternoon the boys were busy catching up with their sleep and were a very lazy crew until supper time.

Thursday morning was spent in scout instructions. In the afternoon a scout executive from LaSalle in company with the Boy Scouts came to camp. They were welcomed by all the camp as they were to put on a play at the camp fire.

Many visitors came to camp to see the stunts of each tent which were performed at the camp fire. Judges were picked to decide the tents that had the best program. After each tent had produced their stunt it was decided by the judges that tent No. 4 won. Tent 7 was second while tent 2 came in third. The stunts were as follows: Tent 4—an age stunt; tent 7—a play by the name, "Gathering of the Nuts."

Tent 2 an Indian dance. To top all of this off the Scout executive's boys put on an Indian play. Later the scout executive told a story of the days when fire was just discovered and the beginning of brotherhood. Chandler Sterling got a second helping of ice cream for he cried until he got it. Chan was the camp baby. Bud Uley has been using a bread paper for his dish cloth of late.

About 20 boys slept out in the open Wednesday night. Tent No. 4 was deserted.

Chandler Sterling arrived in his tent Thursday morning and found a nipple, bottle and bib, this showing he was the camp baby.

The woodcraft clinic is now completed, except for minor trimmings. A nature study game was held instead of rest hour. Tent No. 2 lead by six points over a tie with tents 4 and 6 for second place.

Larry Tibbets, scoutmaster of troop No. 4, of Dixon, is now staying out at camp.

Thomas Coffey and L. Thompson are the Izak Walton's of our camp. A scramble shoe pile was held just before camp fire and Curtis Long of tent 5 won.

Scout Executive Cameron's team won a game of baseball over Bus Smith's team by a score of 9 to 6. A few of the Scouts hiked to Franklin Grove Thursday.

A truckload of watermelons arrived in camp Thursday which was a present from the American Legion post at Dixon.

Ice cream cups were presented to the camp by Henry Hey of Dixon. Red Seyfarth and Louis Pitcher had a wrestling match which turned into a camp mad house.

Chandler Sterling, because he forgot his bottle, was put through the paddling machine.

Don Cameron has fallen for the sucker candy. No wonder we find so many sucker sticks around the camp.

Remember that Sunday is visitor's day, and all visitors are invited to come. Picnic parties will be welcomed. Come on, come all. The program for Sunday night's camp fire will be given by characters representing Indians.

WILL QUIZ SHERIFF

Chicago, Aug. 7.—(AP)—D. G. Hutchison, assistant United States District Attorney announced today that he would summon John D. Walker, sheriff of Will County, to the federal building next week to explain some of the circumstances leading to the sale at public auction at Joliet of a still, presumably for junking which found its way back to the original owners and again was found in operation.

Hutchison said he would ask the sheriff to bring records of the sale and other information.

Three men arrested at the farm on which the still was found will be arraigned for hearing before J. R. Glass, U. S. Commissioner next Friday.

MARINES FOUND SHELL-SHOCKED AFTER BLAST

Missing Marines From Ammunition Depot Are Found

Toledo, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Oliver C. Bliss, of Waterville, Ohio, and Paul W. Moran, Bridgeport, Conn., privates in the U. S. Marine Corps and listed as missing since the explosion which destroyed the U. S. Naval Ammunition depot at Lake Denmark, N. J., are at the home of Bliss' parents near Waterville.

Both men appeared to be shell shocked. They have been wandering in a dazed condition since the day of the explosion, Bliss' parents said. The two marines were found at the interurban station here this morning by Verne Bliss, Oliver's father.

A cousin had reported that he thought he had seen Oliver on a Toledo street yesterday afternoon and his father had searched for him. He happened to come across the men in the station. Oliver did not recognize his father.

Fears Explosion.

Oliver burst into tears when he saw a concrete bridge which crosses a little stream in the rear of his home.

"It looks like an ammunition dug-out," he said. "I'm afraid it will explode."

Oliver had $1.75 in his pocket when found and more or less 75 cents. They do not remember how they came to Toledo, but Mr. Bliss believes that they walked.

Marine officials were notified and they were taken to Detroit this afternoon. They will be taken to the naval hospital in Washington, D. C.

Cholera Continues To Take Frightful Toll Among Chinese

Shanghai, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Cholera is taking an appalling toll of Chinese in the native section of Shanghai and in the district known as Pootung across the Yangtze river. The disease is carrying off more than 1,000 daily. It is estimated that 600,000 foreigners living in well governed concession districts under modern sanitary conditions have suffered comparatively little. Only two of the 20,000 foreign residents have succumbed.

It is impossible to obtain an accurate count of the deaths among the Chinese in their densely crowded, unsanitary districts into which a population of a million and one half is jammed.

Pertinent Facts For Busy Reader

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Pertinent paragraphs of odds and ends of information and opinion gleaned from snappers at the annual Institute of Politics, boiled down for busy readers:

A certain mental attitude of co-operation and co-existence lies at the basis of American prosperity, rather than the possession of natural resources—H. F. Bain, Institute of American Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

We must lodge the beautitudes in the hearts of our editors of the peace makers are to prevail—Professor R. G. Brown, Columbia University.

In China 85 workers out of each hundred are needed for the necessities of life, leaving only 15 workers to produce articles of commerce for a higher standard of living. GOOD PROGRAM FOR CONCLUDING NIGHT AT THE ASSEMBLY

Patrons Will Enjoy Offerings In Auditorium Tonight

This evening at 7:30, Carleyn Baltzley, the child reader of Chicago, who delighted her audience so much on Tuesday evening, will give a number of new young on the platform and we are glad to have her appear again.

The DeLen Company will give the concluding program of the Rock River Assembly for this year. They are a company of three excellent magicians. There will be table lifting, slate writing, spirit photography and many other marvelous demonstrations.

The Lions Male Quartette proved to be one of the most enjoyable numbers of this season's program. They gave a varied program, consisting of quartette numbers, solos, duets, and readings. Oscar Hederstrom's readings were enthusiastically received. His bass solo was delightful. Russell Rizer's tenor rang clear and true. Especially was this true in his solo "A Dream." Ed Norton sang two delightful Scotch songs which brought out his fine baritone. Virginia Rizer was a very capable accompanist.

Their evening program was varied in such a way as to be most enjoyable. There were two quartette numbers, Virginia Rizer singing with the quartette. Clyde Church was second tenor.

"Dusty" Miller's talk was bubbling over with enthusiasm. Too much can not be said of his philosophy of life, of his good will. His talk was very practical and inspirational. One would have had to hear him to really appreciate what he can do for any community. We need more people like him in our country. His talk was straight to the heart.

BIBLE CONFERENCE OPENS TOMORROW AT THE ASSEMBLY

The great bible conference which has been advertised over the entire state of Illinois, eastern Missouri and southern Wisconsin, and which has gathered some of his world's greatest talent to appear on this program, will open tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m., with Dr. Perry of Wooster, Ohio, as the speaker. At the 4 o'clock hour we will have the pleasure of hearing Dr. Charles L. Goodell of New York City. One of the most successful men of this generation, author and internationally known lecturer and preacher, secretary of the Federal Council Commission on Evangelism.

Famous Singer Here.

At the Vesper Hour there will be a Union Young Peoples' Service, in which all the churches of Dixon will unite. Dr. Albert W. Carlson, pastor of the First Methodist church will be the speaker. The evening service promises to be one of our real unique and outstanding services when the world famous Homer Rodeheaver will tell the story of his trip around the world. His topic is: "Singing the Gospel Around the World." Any who have heard him with Billy Sunday in the great tabernacle meetings, and his famous trombone, will not miss this and their only chance of hearing him during this Bible Conference. He has with him Ugo Nakada of Japan, who is his companion in song.

The Conference is already looming up as one of the truly great institutions of this community. Large numbers have written in, and made their reservations for rooms and tenting space on the Assembly ground. We have had communications from far and near which indicates the widespread interest manifested.

A telegram received this morning from Cedar Falls, Iowa, where these men have just completed a week's conference, says, "This year's program was unusually strong. Dr. Parley E. Zartman who is our director wires all things are in readiness and there will be no disappointment."

The board of directors, who have completed the arrangements feel gratified for the cooperation given them by all the churches, the Chamber of Commerce, and individual business men. Dr. Carlson who has been our chairman and president has worked with much zeal for the success which will be realized in this coming week's program. There is no admission charge and the auditorium in the assembly grounds will accommodate 5000 people.

It is desired that all who sing in any of the church choirs, or who can sing, will join the Tabernacle Choir. Let all who can plan to spend most of next week on the Assembly ground and Dixon and the community will be greatly benefited by the spiritual uplift. We assure and bring the children as we have children specialists to care for the children's hour.

The Daily program includes sessions from 8:30 a. m. continuing all day. Thursday is Missionary day. There is a regular school of Missions for our Missionary Societies, a young women's program and a children's school. Truly one of the great events of the year. You can hear these men only at such great conferences.

Dr. Childers, successor to the famous Charles S. Spurgeon, in the great Tabernacle Auditorium, London, England will be heard. John Marvin Dean, a veritable explosion of enthusiasm, and pastor of one of the largest Baptist Churches on the coast, will be heard. For those who can attend Sunday morning Dr. Simon Peter Long of Chicago will hold the morning service at the tabernacle at 10:30. Daily programs can be secured at the Y. M. C. A.

PARR'S "WIFE" IN ADMISSION NEVER MARRIED

Confesses That Minneapolis Woman's Claim Is Correct

Chicago, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Miss Irma Johnson and not Mrs. E. H. Parr is the proper identification of the young woman said and slightly wounded last Monday night, when her companion, Edward H. Parr, bond salesman formerly of Minneapolis, Minn., was fatally wounded by Fletcher Andrews of Dallas, Texas, who opened fire while in a demented rage at a fancied insult.

Miss Johnson went to a police station today with her brother and confessed that while she had lived with Parr for some time they never had been married.

The police began a search for her after a telegram signed by Mrs. E. H. Parr was received from Minneapolis.

Girl Is Released.

Miss Johnson, also formerly of Minneapolis was permitted to go to the apartment she formerly occupied with Parr and get her clothing and later was released since no word had been received from Mrs. Parr as to possible prosecution.

The young couple were returning home from a motion picture show when without warning, the Texan began shooting. Andrews has been indicted for murder but at the city psychopathic laboratory he was found to be suffering from hallucinations. He said he fired because he thought Parr had made a slighting remark. So far as known they never had seen each other previously.

Parr's body lies in a Chicago undertaking establishment, the proprietors of which have had no word from Mrs. Parr in Minneapolis although police information was that she was coming to claim it.

IOWANS SELECT A CUMMINS MAN TO FINISH HIS TERM

Governor Appoints Sioux City Man To Finish Term

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 7.—(AP)—David W. Stewart, Sioux City attorney, today was appointed by Governor Hammill, as United States Senator, to serve from now until the November general election in the place of the late Senator A. B. Cummins. Stewart was named here yesterday as the party's nominee in the November election for the term of Senator Cummins, which expires in March, 1927. The appointment was necessary because congress reconvenes before Stewart could be elected following the November 2nd election.

AGREE ON STEWART

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 7.—(AP)—David W. Stewart, a Sioux City attorney, is the choice of Iowa republicans for a short term in the United States Senate, although he is comparatively unknown in state politics. He is 39 years old, and was selected as the party candidate for the unexpired term of the late Senator A. B. Cummins at the state party convention held here yesterday. On the third formal ballot, the former first sergeant of World War marines, received 855 votes, 133 more than required to nominate.

As the democrats will not name a candidate for the short term, a declaration announced by the democratic central committee after the republican nomination, Mr. Stewart will be unopposed in the November election unless an independent file.

Reunites Iowa G. O. P.

Stewart's nomination apparently has prevented a division of republican ranks, united a week before Senator Cummins' death at the regular state convention. Prior to yesterday's convention, Cummins' adherents notwithstanding the defeat of

DELEGATION OF WOMEN ENJOY CAMP AT PORT HURON

Port Huron, Aug. 7.—A delegation of more than 250 women from Illinois is spending this week at Lake Huron Camp of the Woman's Benefit Association on the Lake Shore near Port Huron. This is the second largest delegation to attend the camp here this summer.

A conference is being held on the methods of advancing the work of the association, but business sessions are brief, so that most of the campers can spend their time enjoying the land and water sports available here. Lake Huron camp, 125 acres in extent, with half a mile of beach frontage, is owned and operated by the Woman's Benefit Association, which has national headquarters here, as a summer playground for its 250,000 members. The health giving results of a summer outing on the shores of Lake Huron is considered by officers of the association of great value to the membership. Water sports, tennis, hiking and other sports are available to the guests who live in dormitories, bungalows or tents as they prefer.

Each evening in the spacious assembly hall at camp, programs and dancing are offered as entertainment. An historical pageant showing the rise of Illinois from waste prairie to a great industrial and agricultural state was shown one evening.

Visits to the national headquarters building and to Westhaven, the home of Miss Bina M. West, Supreme Commander was a feature of the week's program.

Hang in Shade.

Takes Off Mud.

The most obstinate mud stains may be removed with raw potato or carbonate of soda rubbed on with a cloth dipped in the soda.

BATHTUBS, NOSES, KISSES, SPRINTERS.

It's a peculiar thing that way we get all het up over trifles. Or perhaps we should say it is peculiar the way trifling things have a habit of interesting us.

As an instance: For every one reader who can tell you the name of the New Jersey town where the recent disastrous arsenal explosion took place, there are at least 40,000 who can tell you the name of the girl who performed her Saturday night ablutions in Mr. Carroll's champagne tub. Not only that, but they can tell you the color of her hair and her old man's occupation.

The latest bit of inconsequential, and therefore terrifically interesting, news is the controversy between two physicians over the authorship of Jack Dempsey's latest nose. It seems that a New York doctor claims credit for it and a Los Angeles doctor has asked for an injunction to shut him up.

Reading farther, you learn that the Los Angeles physician says Jack's new horn is at least 25 per cent stronger than the old one, and Jack corroborates him. Who cares? You ask. The answer is: Very few. Outside of Dempsey and a few friends, the man who is chiefly interested in the shock absorbing qualities of the new proboscis is Gene Tunney, who, if one of a million or more law suits doesn't prevent, will engage in a few rounds of fisticuffs with the champion.

The physicians' interest in the new beak is merely academic; Tunney's is something more than that to say the least. As a matter of fact, the man's curiosity is inflamed to such a degree that those close to him say he will make numerous attempts to change the position of Jack's nostrils from a point just above the upper lip to a remote corner of the left eyebrow.

We see that Red Grange, having returned from Hollywood with the admission that as a movie star he was a fine open field runner, is named in a divorce suit. It is said that another man's wife kissed Red when he wasn't looking. This goes to show what happens to even the best of half-backs when they haven't any interference.

Charley Paddock, incensed at an alleged statement from Red that the movie stars are not what they are cracked up to be, calls the terror of the gridiron an oil can, being careful to wait until Red is back home again in Wheaton. Anyway, we'd call anybody any kind of a name we wanted to if we could run as fast as Charley.

On top of this, Paddock gets engaged to Bebe Daniels and comes out with a statement explaining just why he went into the movies, and after reading it you care less than you did before and wonder whether Charley studied anything beside track at the University of Southern California.

All this is a lot of nonsense, of course. But the point is you read it.

WHAT DOES THIS PROVE?

There are 15,000 speakeasies in New York City. Who said so? Well, we have it on the word of Chester P. Mills, federal prohibition administrator for that district.

Thus there are more speakeasies in New York City today, Mr. Mills says, than there used to be licensed saloons in the whole state of New York. Only 13,005 licenses were issued for New York state during the year 1918.

New York City, of course, may be an exception. Again it may not. Other federal officers, in various parts of the country, may know where there are several thousand more bootleg places. If Mr. Mills knows where 15,000 are, must not the other agents tab of a few also?

Suppose there were as many speakeasies scattered over the country, in proportion to population, as there are in New York City? Roughly then, we would have around 345,000 speakeasies in this, the eighth year of prohibition.

Of course, the rest of the country is not so wet as New York. That is, we believe not. That is, we mean, we guess not.

THEY STILL ARE BROTHERS.

They tried the Scott brothers, Russell and Robert, in Chicago for the murder of a drug store clerk during a robbery. At first Robert Scott pleaded guilty, then he fought the case and, in open court denied that he had fired the shot that killed the man.

Russell Scott was tried. He was sentenced to be hanged. Robert Scott, following his denial and trial, was sentenced to life imprisonment. With that sentence pronounced, Robert the other day issued a statement saying that it was he, after all, who had fired the fatal shot.

Russell, thus, under sentence to hang, is thrown upon executive clemency. Under such circumstances just what is a governor supposed to do? The man who says he is guilty of the murder is under life sentence; his brother, whom is statement exonerates, is doomed to hang.

These Scott boys are not a bit like Cain and Abel.

IRON, A CIVILIZING INFLUENCE.

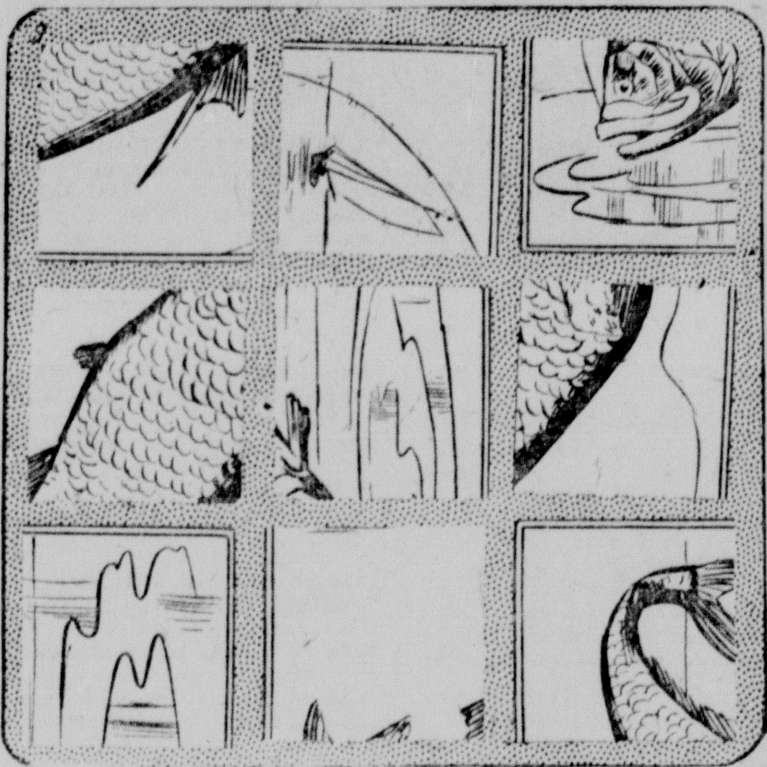

For more than two years Kansas City judges have been sending drunken drivers to the municipal farm where they serve their sentence in chains.

They serve once, and they don't come back, according, according to J. P. O'Rourke, superintendent of the farm. One lesson is enough. They all tell O'Rourke that they have made that mistake for the last time.

Iron, in the form of shackles, is a great civilizing influence.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

Her Own Way.

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

A QUIET INTERLUDE

Jerry bowed stiffly as I introduced him to Joan, and helped us into the car. The drive out to the farm house was filled with small talk, although I could feel that Jerry, underneath his manner, was weighing out every word with quiet intensity.

"Only a few days now and we'll be away from all this," she said. "How restful the crossing to Europe will seem."

I smiled at her. Jerry said nothing, but he looked as though he had received his death blow as he helped us out of the car with great formality.

He made some excuse about parking the roadster and Joan and I walked up the syringa lined path together.

I will never forget that evening as long as I shall live. The soft purplish twilight in which we had started from the city had deepened into darkness. The heavens above were studded with twinkling stars that seemed to have some communication with the tiny glittering earth's stars, as one might have called the fireflies, which flitted in and out among the low foliage, giving one the impression that they had just dropped from among their fellows in the sky.

Turning my head a little, I saw the moon's thin crescent just over my right shoulder and close down by its lower point a brilliant star seemed to punctuate with a period the sensational story I had lived the last few months. I took it for a good omen.

In silence Joan and I went up the walk. Jerry still lagged behind. Joan's hand stole into mine. I knew that she too was feeling that blessed peace which was filling my heart.

As though to emphasize the prosaic life of everyday we came upon the porch where the table with its white table cloth was set in homely fashion and lighted by four candles in heavy glass candlesticks.

There were pats of new made butter, and dishes of scented honey, crisp pickles, and colorful jams dotted about the table. These things I had not seen since I had left my father's house.

There was an odor of broiled chicken which mingled pleasantly with the scent of the syringas, told me I was hungry—I remembered I had eaten nothing since my coffee in the morning.

None of us spoke as we three were seated at the table. Jerry's face was inscrutable. I glanced at it furtively once or twice, as seemed to have shut me out of his mind entirely. It was as though I were not there. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

Judge Aroused When Cops Lost Prisoner

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Four police officers of East Peoria must get John Ranquin out of the South Bend, Ind., jail and produce him in circuit court before Judge T. N. Green next Tuesday morning or he is adjudged in contempt of court, the judge warned the defendants this morning. Ranquin was arrested in East Peoria some weeks ago on a warrant from South Bend charging him with disposing of mortgaged property. He claimed he was not in the state at the time of the alleged offense and his attorney petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus. While the hearing was pending, it is alleged Ranquin was turned over to Indiana authorities.

OLD RANCH TO GO

Fort Worth, Tex.—The Great Matador, most famous of Texas ranches, is to be sold soon for colonization in farm blocks. The Matadors have two ranches in Texas comprising about 800,000 acres. They have about 4,500 head of cattle, conservatively estimated to be worth $3,000,000.

PONTIAC SIX

CHIEF OF THE SIXES

The Pontiac Six is scoring the most spectacular first year success ever recorded in automotive history—because it meets the driving conditions of today like no other car in the world at its price.

Without an excess ounce of bulk—without an unnecessary inch in length, it is ideally suited to the congested highways of today. Having the largest engine of any six costing less than $1,000, it flashes swiftly through congested traffic; and so sturdily is it constructed that it can be held at top speed for as many continuous hours as the driver likes.

Yet despite its highly desirable external compactness, the Pontiac Six is a supremely comfortable car. Step into the Pontiac Six Sedan. Note its roominess. Mark well the wide, inviting seats and ample leg room.

Then remember, that with all its luxurious provisions for comfort, the Pontiac Six turns in a 38 foot circle—and that it can be quickly and easily parked in places too small for other cars of equal passenger capacity.

YANKS ROUT TRIS SPEAKER'S INDIANS IN CRUCIAL SERIES

The Babe Gets His 35th Home Run To Help New York

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Tris Speaker's fighting Indians, seeking world baseball honors after six years, have gone down before their greatest foes of 1926, the New York Yankees.

That series—regarded as important in that it was an opportunity for Cleveland to cut down the lead gained by the men of Huggins—ended in a New York conquest, 2 games to 1. Yesterday's score was Yankees 8; Indians 7.

Outstanding in this closing battle of the series were the efforts of Babe Ruth of New York and George Burns of Cleveland, hitters of different types to make gains in the departments of play at which they excel. Ruth drove out his 35th home run of the year while Burns added three doubles to his list, his total now standing at 11.

Washington and Detroit recorded 13 hits each by the Senators were more effective and they won 12 to 8.

Philadelphia with excellent pitching from Lefty Grove who permitted the St. Louis Browns only 5 hits, won by 6-3.

Boston outslugged the Chicago White Sox but lost out 7-4. Eddie Collins led his team's offensive with a triple and two singles.

Pittsburgh gained a full game in the national league race by turning back Boston 5-4 while Cincinnati again tumbled before the Giants 6-3.

Babe Herman of Brooklyn got a homer but the St. Louis Cardinals gave three Dodger pitchers a terrific lacing and St. Louis won 7-3.

Chicago and Philadelphia had the only extra inning engagement of the day, the Phillies going down 2-1. Sheriff Blake of the Cubs allowed the enemy three hits in 6 1-3 innings but after that Jones and Miltstead refused to grant a safety.

SIDELIGHTS

A home run smash by Travis Jackson in the 4th with two on put the Giants out in front of the Reds who had chalked up three runs on McQuillan before he could retire the side in the first inning. Jimmy Ring, a former Red, checked the rally.

The Cubs used three pitchers against the Phillies in their ten inning game and only three hits were made off Blake who tolled 6 1-3 innings. Percy Jones went 2 2-3 frames without any damage and Miltstead did the flinging in the last frame without allowing a hit.

The Cubs are now classed as a bunch of strong finishers. They went out yesterday and defeated the Phillies in ten innings, the third victory in a row from Philadelphia.

Manager Collins of the White Sox who has been sporting a cleaner uniform than his hirelings, has been

Channel Swimmer's Punishment Starts With Mucky, Smeary Grease Bath

BY LILLIAN CANNON

(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)
Gap Gris Nez, France, Aug. 7—One of the most distasteful parts of channel swimming is the greasing. You simply are all mucked up. You feel so slimy and unclean that it is a pleasure to get into the water and shake yourself.

But the grease they put on a channel swimmer doesn't wash off in the water. If it did it wouldn't be any good. The usefulness of grease is that it keeps out the disastrous cold, protects the vital parts, and shelters the veins so that circulation may continue normal. The salt water soothes the sticky feeling, so that fortunately a swimmer begins to forget about the grease.

My trainer has a special preparation for channel swimming which is mainly a mixture of lard and lanoline. When I take my big swim my body will first be thoroughly massaged to keep the pores of the skin open, and then the grease will be put on in layers as thick as possible. I hope my girl friends, who are proud of their healthy bodies, will sympathize with me in this punishment.

In the start of the first channel attempt I ever saw I certainly sympathized with the victim because of this greasing. The swimmer was Frank Perks, the young Englishman who has been trying so hard for several years to cross the channel. His boat arrived off the beach here after darkness and I went down to greet him when he came ashore.

Soon he was so plastered that he looked not at all human. Except for his head, which was covered with a rubber cap and thick goggles to protect his eyes, he was a slippery, gruesome object, white from his ears to his toes.

Philadelphia, beat Frankie Murphy, Denver, (6); Dandy Black, Chicago, stopped Kid Reppy, Des Moines (4); Dutch Kimball, Des Moines, outpointed Jimmy Hogan, Gary, Ind., (4).

In the darkness, with a couple of flashlights to accentuate the uncanny setting, he looked like a ghost.

It was close to midnight when he started. I shook hands with him, and wished him luck. When he was about waist deep he turned and shouted, "Good luck to you, Miss Cannon, when you start." Then he added, "Good night, everybody," and struck out.

There was a haze on the sea, and he was lost from sight almost immediately. I went back to bed and dreamed that I was a poor old crew struggling in a huge pot of grease.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredith, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's father, disillusioned by a faithless wife, warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time, envied by all men, adored by all women. Even Lucretia Borgia, at the peak of her power, desires to meet him. Meanwhile, successful Duke Margoni surprises his wife in Juan's room; but Juan shows the Duke that his own beloved, Imperia, is also hidden there.

Utterly bewildered, he faced Juan, his anger quite gone. "Your lovely wife has discovered your—affection, shall we say—for Imperia," murmured Juan. "She sent messages to you both to come here."

Juan paused, and the Duke shook his head, uncomprehendingly. "Then she came herself, in order to catch you together," Juan continued. "I have done my poor best to protect you."

Helplessly Margoni looked from the bedroom door to the one behind whose hangings Imperia was concealed. Then back to Juan. For the first time in his whole domineering life he was completely at a loss. Juan nodded toward the small door leading to the garden, then led him over to it, and indicated the way through the garden to the street. Gratefully Margoni nodded to him and took his departure. Juan watched until the high gate of the walled garden had closed behind the Duke, then came back into the house, a curious little smile twisting his lips. Pedrillo, coming in from the bedroom, looked at him in admiration. "Master, your skill—" he began, impulsively; then, in response to Juan's "The Ladies?" went on, "They have gone, my lord."

Juan shrugged his shoulders, and turned to one of the massive chairs that had been sent to him from his home in Spain when he decided to stop in Rome for a time. But before he had settled into it there was a clamor from without, a pounding on the door, that brought him to his feet again. Pedrillo answered it, fully expecting another woman or another angry man to face him, but instead saw only a messenger in the magnificent livery of the Borgias. The messenger strode across the room to Juan, and held out a parchment to him, but Juan made no move to take it. Pedrillo held out his hand for it then, but Juan caught the man's wrist in a grip like iron, and shook his head. To the messenger he said, "Put it down," and nodded to the messenger to leave. To Pedrillo, returning after showing the man out, he explained:

"Parchment is sometimes poisoned—and a message from a Borgia must be handled with care. 'The possible that I have robbed the great Cesare of a favorite lady—by some delightful accident.'"

And, picking up a knife with delicately wrought Toledo blade, he opened the parchment, without touching it with his fingers. Still holding it with the knife blade, he bent to read the invitation to a ball in the palace of the Borgias, which Lucretia had ordered sent to him after the incident of the monkey and the lingerie, and her cousin's subtle challenge to her.

A gesture to Pedrillo, and a list of his engagements for the day of the ball was laid on the table. He glanced down it. One woman's name followed another. Niki, Drucilla, La Nina, the lovely blonde girl who wore green. Maria, Constantia, each had her hour. The mystery of the girl in green had won for her an extra hour, from shortly before sunset till some time after the day would have slipped ped into night behind the hills of Rome.

For an instant he hesitated, then caught up a pen and ran it through the list. Lucretia Borgia—it might be amusing to match his own lawlessness against hers.

Don Juan was probably the only man in Rome who could feel amusement and mild curiosity at the thought of attending a social function at the command of the Borgias. The guests who assembled in the lofty ceilinged, beautifully paneled room where Lucretia and her brother received could not be sure, any one of them, that before the evening was over death, summoned by the lovely blonde woman, by her satyrine brother, would not have ended their lives. For the Borgias knew ways of calling death that were so subtle that they could hardly be detected. And when one hardly dares eat or drink or touch anything, or venture too near a heavy curtain or a paneled wall, or out onto a balcony to enjoy the moonlight, it is difficult to seem at ease.

Most of the guests concealed their fears admirably. But the Lady Adriana Della Vernese, arriving with her father, was too young and too unsophisticated to do so. A blast on a silver trumpet preceded the announcement of their arrival, and Adriana, standing an instant in the doorway, was as pale as the moon-white satin that clung to her slender body, as colorless as the pearls wound about her delicate throat.

She even drew back for an instant, as she faced the throng of those who had been summoned by the Borgias, and who were wondering, as their eyes dwelt on the

by CAROLYN WELLS

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MRS. PRENTISS, who suffers from insomnia, sees lights mysteriously appear and disappear in the HEATH household next door one night, and the next morning Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog with the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY, an artist.

House guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN and BUNNY MOORE. Inman might have a motive because he is heir to Myra's considerable fortune, she having made her will in his favor and cut her husband off. Suspicion also points toward Bunny, a vivacious, golden-haired beauty, because of her refusal to answer questions at the inquest and the fact she had apparently known of the murder before the maid, who went to her room to inform her.

Myra Heath was a peculiar woman, beautiful but cold. She did not love her husband; she never used cosmetics, never wore colors; she had a mania for collecting rare bits of glass, and it was a whisky bottle that was the instrument of her death—a bottle from her own collection.

Candles were burning at her head and feet when a maid discovered her body, and nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath." Strangest of all, she was made up heavily with rouge and dressed in gay colors.

The strangest thing about Heath's disappearance is the fact that all the doors and windows had been locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning.

Finger prints of Inman and Bunny Moore are found on the bottle, and the coroner declares his belief that the murderer will be found in the household. A vanity case has strangely disappeared and doctors declare the rouge was applied to Myra's face after death.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the mystery, and others, some believing Perry Heath the murderer, others disagreeing. Cunningham suspects Bunny Moore.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

"WELL, you're philosophical, to say the least," Anderson told him. "But go ahead, old chap. Quiz the pretty little girl—'I'd like to see that character—and put the he-cootin' through a course of sprouts. My choice is for him. He's the only one I can see who has motive, which, I've been told, is the first thing to look for."

IN NEW YORK

New York—A pilgrimage to the Theodore Roosevelt house is on the itinerary of most tourists.

And while taking this trip to a national shrine, a few minutes walk will take the visitor about the Gramercy Park section. Now Gramercy Park, which is one block square, is Manhattan's most exclusive park. It is fenced in and keys to the gate are held only by those who live around it. The number of keys is limited to 200. Many years ago one Samuel Rugles gave the park to the neighborhood under the strict proviso that it may not be in any way disturbed.

To begin this easy little jaunt, take a Fifth Avenue bus at any part of the city. No. 28 East 20th Street is the rebuilt Roosevelt house. It is kept up by a memorial association, and considerable reconstruction has been necessary. A fee of 25 cents is charged except on Saturdays and Sundays.

The interior is practically intact.

"Heath will come back of his own accord," Anderson said, insistently.

"I suppose Inman may be said to have had motive," Cunningham said, slowly. "But I know him, and though I'm not an intimate friend, I can't seem to see him brutally murdering his beautiful cousin, to inherit her property."

"Why not?" said Anderson. "I mean, granting the brutal murder, somebody must have done it. And presumably somebody in the house, if the stories of the careful looking up are all true. I don't eliminate the possibility of Heath's guilt but I can't see how he could get away afterward. He could, of course, have gone away before the crime, if the cousin did it."

"Well, I'll go there this evening, if they'll let me in, if not, I'll insist on an interview tomorrow. I shall say I represent the Country Club, which feels it has a right to use every effort to locate one of its members who is mysteriously absent."

"Yes, that's a good way to put it," commented Black. "You must get something, Cunny. As you say, that doddering coroner got nowhere."

"It's outrageous, the way such cases are handled by incompetent and ignorant officials!" Anderson declared. "By the time a clever or experienced detective can get busy on them, the important clues have been obliterated. And not only that, but the bungling operatives are so cocksure and self-sufficient that they persuade the public of their own efficiency when they have none at all."

"That's right, Sam," Black agreed. "Well, get busy, Cunningham. Hunt down Heath, if you can. Get all the information you can from the people at the bungalow, and let's cover the Country Club with glory by solving the mystery of the murder of Myra Heath!"

"Heath will come back of his own accord," Anderson said, insistently. "And you'll find clues or evidences pointing to Larry Inman as the perpetrator of the crime. Of course, this is pure surmise on my part, but all the evidence seems to lie in that direction."

"Maybe," Cunningham said, thoughtfully. "I'm not sure you're not right. But innocent or guilty, it ought not to be hard to find Heath. Men can't drop out of sight so easily."

The "boss" of Gramercy Park is James J. Hannon, the gardener. For 25 years he has nursed the flowers, trees and shrubs. He knows all about everybody and everything and gives particular attention to the children who are frequently left in his care as he works about.

His rules for the youngsters are strict. If they misbehave they must sit on a bench for a stated period of time. Large boys who misbehave are sentenced to walk around the park a dozen times.

The parents of the youngsters of today were among his charges of yesterday.

Irving Place parallels the park. So named for the Irving Place theater, once the German theater where the great Conrad played and on a corner of East 17th Street the old home of Washington Irving.

At 15th Street, the home of Ida Tar-

I've heard, the department have already put detectives on his track, but I've heard of no response as yet. Though, of course, it's too soon to expect it. I don't know Heath awfully well, after all. Do any of you fellows know anything—er—unsatisfactory about him?"

"Shady, you mean?" asked Black. "Yes—or queer—peculiar. Eccentric. Anything, in fact, out of the ordinary. The sort of thing a chap wouldn't tell of an acquaintance, except in such circumstances as these we're now facing. If any one knows anything detrimental to Perry Heath, I hold it is his duty to tell it."

"I agree with that," Anderson spoke decidedly. "Personally, I know nothing. I'm not very well acquainted with him, but when I learned he was to be a rival candidate for the club presidency, I naturally looked up his record."

"Where'd you find it?" asked Cunningham, eagerly.

"Oh, I don't mean in official files. I just asked a few club members. I found out nothing definitely against him, and not much definitely for him. He seemed to be rather colorless, I thought."

"Yes, that's Perry," said Wally Forbes. "Good enough, all round sort, but nothing startling about him. If he committed this murder, it's the first exciting incident of his life. I'm sure. He loved a good chap, he is out-door, and he's a genial chap. I think it was his general placidity and good nature that made the Gardens people choose him for their candidate. Most of them are so temperamental, they are unfitted for such a post as president of a club."

"He's welcome to the election, if he'll come back for it," Sam Anderson said, speaking with obvious sincerity. "I don't care a rap for it, dunno whatever made me consent to run."

"There are others," vouchsafed Black. "Garrison's a favorite."

"Hope he'll get it, then," Anderson said, but his tone was not quite so genuine now.

Cunningham departed, with a cheery word as to his own success, and from the clubhouse, he walked back, over the bridge to The Gardens.

As he went, he mused on the difference of atmosphere in the two sides of Gaybrook Harbor.

And it occurred to him, that, though on the Park side, the house-holders were rather formal and a bit stiff, on the Gardens side, there was far more camaraderie and what might be called neighborly sociability.

This led him to wonder if anything might be learned from the neighbors of the Heaths.

As he neared the bungalow, he noted as he passed, the house just before it, and he saw no signs of occupancy. Clearly, the house was at present untenanted. So nothing could be gained from that side.

But on the other side, the side toward the sea, he saw a pleasant bungalow, and on its small but cheery veranda, a middle aged woman and a young man sat chatting.

They reported that fully 600 Illinois bankers stood through a drizzling rain knee deep in wet clover fields and heard how former Gov. Frank O. Lowden operates the 4,500 acres of his famous Sinissippi farm. In his cow barn speech, his boots muddy and his shirt wet with rain, his speech, short and extemporaneous was in the main about the need for organization among the farmers and for a closer contact between the farm and the bank and the factory. Where agriculture flourishes best in the old world there you find farmers best organized. If the Illinois bankers would interest themselves in every cooperative enterprise, help guide the farmers along safe and sound lines the co-
